FREAKS ENTITLED TO FAME

European Families That Had More Than Ordinary Claims to World's Attention.

There is living at Bilbao, Spain, a family of seven who between them possess no fewer than 164 fingers. One of them has 23 fingers, another 21, while of the remaining five each can boast a couple of hands with 12 fingers apiece.

At Koshillivo, Russia, a very similar phenomenon exists in the fifty or more descendants of a peasant with extra fingers on his hands, who married at the beginning of the last century, all of whom are dowered with from one to five fingers in excess of the normal number.

The last surviving member of what was perhaps the record family with regard to weight was, in the person of Charles Atkins, a few years back interred at Harrow, England. He weighed 478 pounds, his brothers, who predeceased him, being no less than 504 and 560 pounds.

The family record for longevity has not been beaten since Robert Parr, the great-grandson of the celebrated Thomas Parr, died in 1757 at the age of one hundred and twenty-four. His father lived to celebrate his one hundred and ninth birthday, his grandfather reached one hundred and thirteen, while his great-grandfather was 152 at the time of his death.

There is mentioned in the Harleian Miscellany a Scotch weaver and his wife who were the proud parents of 62 children, 50 of whom reached their majority.

Large as this family was, its fame pales before that of a Russian, one Ivan Wassilg, who was the proud father of 87. By his first wife he had 60 children in the following order: Four times quadruplets at a birth, seven times triplets and 16 times twins. By his second spouse he had twice triplets and six times twins.

Undoubtedly the record for misfortune belongs to a Belgian family named Adnet. The father, Jean Adnet, was drowned; his wife committed suicide, while of his two sisters one was killed by the kick of a horse and the other by a blow received from a falling scaffold.

Jean Adnet had six children, four sons and two daughters. Of these the latter perished through the overturning of a pleasure boat. One of the sons was stabbed in a drunken brawl, another was crushed to death by a heavy wagon, while the remaining two, who emigrated to America, were slain in 1891 while fighting for Bel-maceda against congressists.—Stray Stories.

OHIO IS NATION'S THRIFTIEST STATE

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Ohio is the nation's thriftiest state. Every other state in the Union is hailing her as such. And its all because she has sold more War Savings Stamps.

During August Ohio sold more War Stamps than all the New England states combined, more than New York and Pennsylvania together and twice as many as Illinois, second highest state. Ohio sold one-fifth of the War Savings Stamps sold in the nation during August.

TAKES ANOTHER JUMP

During the past week the Journal added eleven new names to its list, making a total of 38 since we started the campaign. We added six Saturday under the 30 cent offer and five took the paper for the full year. The offer of the Journal for three months for only 30 cents cash with order, is again good next Saturday. You had better take advantage of it as soon as possible as the offer is only good for a short time and may be withdrawn any week. We would appreciate it if you would let your neighbors know of this offer. If you receive a sample copy of the Journal consider it an invitation to subscribe.

Used Theater Programs Cleaned.

Conservation has extended even to rumpled theater programs, left in the seats by the patron of a theater, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. Between 200 and 300 are picked up each night, piled in stacks of 50 each, and pressed flat in a bookbinder's press for 24 hours. Emerging flat and unwrinkled from this process, they are then run through rubber rollers, which erase all fingerprints and stains. It is said that it is impossible to distinguish these reclaimed programs from those just off the printing press.
